Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) OR THIRTY (30) DAYS, WHICHEVER IS LONGER, FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Status

- 1) ☒ Responsive to communication(s) filed on 02 July 2007.
- 2a) ☐ This action is FINAL. 2b) ☒ This action is non-final.
- 3) ☐ Since this application is in condition for allowance except for formal matters, prosecution as to the merits is closed in accordance with the practice under Ex parte Quayle, 1935 C.D. 11, 453 O.G. 213.

Disposition of Claims

- 4) ☒ Claim(s) 4-12 is/are pending in the application.

DETAILED ACTION

Applicant's remarks filed on 7/2/2007 have been fully considered. Applicant's admission that the Japanese 2003-63958 document is not a patent but is an application is persuasive. Therefore, the 35 USC 102(d) rejection is hereby withdrawn.

Applicant's remarks over the Obviousness-type Double Patenting rejections have been considered. Upon further consideration it is noted that the claims of Application 10/311,972 are now relating to tension during physical exercise, which the Examiner does not consider obvious over the present invention. Therefore, the rejection is being withdrawn.

Applicant's remarks over the Obviousness-type Double Patenting rejection over Application 10/343,931 have been considered and are not found persuasive. Applicants argue that ADHD is a distinct disorder than mood disorders. This is not persuasive because as the claim reads, a mood disorder can be anything that affects the mood and ADHD is a disorder that is known to affect the mood of an individual. Therefore, the rejection is maintained.

The following new grounds of rejection are given below.

Claim Rejections – 35 U.S.C. § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 4 and 6 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Ueda et al. (U.S. Patent 6,831,103).

Ueda et al. teaches the administration of a theanine-containing composition that is capable of ameliorating symptoms such as mental symptoms (i.e., depressive state or spiritlessness) associated with premenstrual syndrome (PMS; Col. 5, lines 10-38). Column 5 lists more symptoms that are associated with mood that meet the broad limitation of "mood disorder" listed in claim 4. Ueda et al. further teach that theanine may be contained in different types of food or beverages (Col. 6, lines 8-67 – Col. 7, lines 1-17).

Claim Rejections – 35 U.S.C. § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 5 and 7-12 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ueda et al. (U.S. Patent 6,831,103) as applied to claims 4 and 6 above in view of Hamilton (J Neurol Neurosurg Psychiat, 1960, 23, 56).

Art Unit: 1617

Ueda et al. teach a method for ameliorating different types of mood, such as a depressed mental state and spiritlessness (meeting the limitations of claims 5, 8 and 12, with a food or beverage containing theanine).

Ueda et al. do not specifically teach that the mood is assessed by the Hamilton scale or all of the different types of mood listed in claims 9-11.

Hamilton teaches a rating scale for measuring symptoms of mental disorder, including the symptoms such as depressed mood, feelings of guilt, suicide, retardation: psychomotor and diminished insight (see whole document).

Accordingly, it would be obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention that the Hamilton scale would be an effective assessment of symptoms of mood disorders because of the teachings of Ueda et al. that theanine containing compositions are effective in treating various types of mood, particularly those associated with premenstrual syndrome. It would further be obvious that theanine would treat depressed state or other forms of mood regardless of how the state manifested, i.e. a person that is not suffering from premenstrual syndrome. One would be motivated to use the Hamilton scale because it is a scale commonly used to assess various mood disorders, including depressed states. Therefore, the other factors in the scale would also be measured.

Conclusion

No claims are allowed.
